The Foreign Corrupt Practices Act of 1977, as amended, 15 U.S.C. 78dd-1 et seq., was enacted for the purpose of making it unlawful for certain classes of persons and entities to make payments to foreign government officials to assist in obtaining or retaining business.

The anti-bribery provisions prohibit the willful use of the mails or any means or instrumentality of interstate commerce corruptly in furtherance of any offer, payment, promise to pay, or authorization of the payment of any money to any foreign official.

The Supreme Court has long recognized that a corporation may be treated as a person. See Citizens United v. Federal Election Commission, 558 U.S. 310 (2010).

Under the European Union's General Data Protection Regulation (Regulation (EU) 2016/679), the processing of personal data is lawful only if and to the extent that at least one of the legal bases set out in Article 6 applies.